What is the penalty for not fulfilling the NLI agreement?

The NLI Recruiting Ban is a year-round ban on all forms of communication with a prospect after the NLI has been signed.

When is the next NLI signing period?

The next NLI Signing Period is Wednesday, February 1. The “NLI” is used in connection with the national signing period for National Letters of Intent.

What is the National Letter of Intent?

The National Letter of Intent (NLI) is used in connection with college football, basketball, and baseball. It is a comprehensive application that must be completed and signed by the prospective student athlete and the prospect’s high school coach, usually around mid-December. The NLI is used to state the student athlete’s desire to attend and enroll at a specific college. The NLI is required to be signed by the prospect and the student athlete’s high school coach, as well as the prospective student athlete, upon the institution’s full-time agreement to provide an athletic scholarship. If the prospect has already committed to the institution prior to signing the NLI, the prospect and high school coach should contact Dan Goldberg, Assistant Athletic Director Compliance at dgoldberg@athletics.ucla.edu or (310) 794-3131.

What is the penalty for not fulfilling the NLI agreement?

If, as of the first day of the NLI signing period, a prospect does not have an NLI for the current institutional signee and the prospect signs with another institution, then the prospect and the new institution will be put on the NCAA’s “Recruitment Violation List.”
